The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 14, 15, 17, and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(E) as being anticipated by Ejzak – U.S. Patent Publication #2003/0027569/U.S. patent #6,871,070.

Ejzak discloses in [0052] an iMSC server-201 that functions as an SIP User Agent and provides inter-networking in between wireless access networks such as 3GPPTS 24.008, and SIP. Ejzak further discloses in [0053] an iMSC server that performs multiple functions including SIP signaling with the CSCF-143. See also [0056] & [0057]. Therefore, iMSC server-201 does send SIP messages.

Ejzak discloses in Figure 1 a user equipment (111), that is most likely a cell phone, laptop, etc. In [0006 & 0007], Ejzak discloses as need for a communications system that will support services for mobile units using either circuit-switched (CS) or packet-switched (PS) communications systems, and then provides for a system that will support features and services for mobile units in either the CS or PS communication systems. In [0019] Ejzak discloses that his device provides an internetworking MSC (iMSC) server, and is depicted in Fig. 1 as element #201. Ejzak's iMSC server translates the CS domain registrations, call control, feature control, and feature invocation procedures associated with access technology to standard SIP procedures.

Application/Control Number: 10/600,914

Art Unit: 2614

SIP, or Session Initiation Protocol is the call control protocol for Internet Protocol, IP. See [0004]. In [0011], Ejzak further discloses that his iMSC server translates control procedures into SIP. In [0057], Ejzak discloses that his iMSC provides internetworking between handover procedures involving SIP call control.

Regarding claim 5, depending on which network has the stronger signal, CS or PS, will determine where the active call is being switched "from" and "to."

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 16, 18, 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ejzak '070 in view of Denman et al '451.

Denman et al disclose ANSI-41 signaling network (330-Fig. 3). Also shown in Fig. 3 is ANSI-41 signalling between Wireless Mobility Server (316) and gateway 326. To have provided Denman et al disclosure of a server, located in a wireless environment, utilizing ANSI-41 signaling in Ejzak's iMSC server would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in an art such as this wireless technology, because of Denman et al disclosure in col. 7, lines 10-15, that one of the functions of wireless Mobility Server 316 is handoff.

Claims 1-13 are allowed.

Claim is distinguished over the prior art because applicant's server is signaling without using Session Description Protocol (SDP). Under the definition of SIP in Newton's Telecom Dictionary, SIP is defined as an "advance negotiation process, which relies on the Session Description Protocol (SDP)." Therefore, it is commonly known to employ SDP in an SIP session, but novel to use SIP without SDP.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
